Depending on their professional ambitions, academic choices, and availability, participants may choose to undertake the following projects:

Individual Professional Project

In this option, participants choose to work in a company for a duration of four to six months. They are coached by a faculty member and supervised by a manager in the company. They return to campus for four executive seminars.

Timeframe: late April to August for September intake; January to April for January intake.

Company Consulting Project

This track enables participants to work as strategic consultants within a company. Participants work in teams of two to four and are coached and supervised by a faculty member and a mentor in the company. Problems, issues, and team recommendations are shared with other participants during the process.

Timeframe: late April to August for September intake; January to April for January intake.

Marketing Project

Conducted under the supervision of a marketing professor, marketing projects provide consulting services on marketing issues. Working in teams of three to four, participants contact companies directly according to their particular area of interest, in the context of their marketing course.

Timeframe: September to December for September intake; January to April for January intake

Summer Project

Depending on their goals and ambitions, participants may engage in independent or faculty-supported projects or group work, including professional assessment, during the two-month summer break.

Timeframe: Mid-July to early September.

Mission & Action Project

This project offers a unique opportunity to gain hands-on experience in a challenging environment under academic supervision. By selecting this option, which allows them to work in the field toward a humanitarian goal, participants engage in fieldwork where stakes are high and the rewards are even greater. They have the opportunity to hone their business skills while giving back to the community.

Timeframe: late April to August for September intake; January to April for January intake.
