

MBA Ambition

Earning an MBA at HEC Paris is the ideal option for candidates seeking to maximize their global career opportunities. Offering cutting-edge management training in a microcosm of the world at the very heart of Europe, our multicultural program expands participants' international perspectives and mobility, while guiding their personal and professional development toward global leadership positions.

HEC MBA participants come from a wide range of academic and professional backgrounds and represent over 55 different nationalities. The number of women participants has also been increasing steadily, reaching 31% for our latest intake. We maintain academic excellence through a rigorous selection process that focuses on personal, as well as professional, attributes.

Participants take advantage of the exceptional diversity of the HEC MBA community by interacting through group work within the People and Organizational Management learning process, which includes theory, case studies, and experiential learning.

A Program at the Heart of European Business

There is no better base for studying international business and launching a global career than Paris. When seeking internships, project hosts, and employers, HEC MBA participants benefit enormously from our location in one of the leading locations for business in Europe. Paris' La Defense, which houses 1,500 corporations, is the largest business district in Europe and lies in proximity to the international commerce hubs of London, Frankfurt, Zurich, and Brussels.

At HEC, we understand that developing a network of professional contacts is key to the success of our MBA graduates, and we capitalize fully on Paris' corporate resources in order to provide our participants with opportunities to develop their personal networks and lay the foundations of their future careers.
